

ALEXANDRIA, VIRGINIA.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 17.

Former Legislatures, for reasons, we suppose, perfectly satisfactory to the members composing the bodies, having failed to act in the premises, the people are taking the matters at issue into their own hands and giving, with no uncertain sound, their views in reference to the debt question, the abuses of long sessions, code tinkering, &c. &c. At the Conservative meeting at Bowling Green, in Caroline county, on Monday last, the following resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, 1st, We are in favor of the proposed Constitutional amendments.

2d, We are in favor of the payment of the interest on the public debt, and an increase of the sinking fund for the ultimate redemption of the principal, as fast as the present burdens of the people will bear, and hope that the further discussion of the debt will cease to engage the attention of the General Assembly of Virginia, other than for the purposes above set forth.

3d, We are in favor of an adjournment of the next General Assembly of Virginia, at farthest, at the expiration of sixty days.

4th, We demand that the per diem of the members of the General Assembly, be reduced to $4 per day.

5th, We deprecate the practice of the late General Assemblies of Virginia, in constantly amending the statute law of the land, as laws when once well understood, are preferable to constant changes and amendments.

The Massachusetts State Central Committee of the "National Union party," to the number of fifty, met in Boston yesterday. A letter was read from Col. T. R. Stockdale, of Mississippi, expressing cordial sympathy with the new party movement, and pledging hearty co-operation. Also a long letter from General Jubal A. Early, of Virginia, expressing the same sentiments. Owing to the unavoidable absence of General Banks, who was expected to read a number of letters from prominent men in different parts of the country, the meeting was adjourned till Saturday.

A Berlin dispatch says the recent successes of the Herzegovinian insurgents render the continuance of the guerrilla warfare until spring possible. The Belgrade papers say that the Turks have again violated Serbian territory, and the Serbian armament is continued. It is said that forty-two deputies of the Serbian Parliament oppose the Government, and are in favor of war, but a majority are in favor of leaving the question of peace or war to the wisdom of Prince Milan.

The Staunton Virginian, in noticing the nomination of Hon. John Letcher for the House of Delegates from Rockbridge county, says: "The election of Mr. Letcher to the Legislature will bring him prominently forward as a formidable candidate for the U. S. Senate, to succeed Senator Johnson. We predict that he will command nearly, if not quite all the strength of the Valley, and to our mind, is the man Mr. Johnson will have to fear."

A meeting of the "Kappahannock and Potomac Immigration Society" is to be held in Fredericksburg on the 30th, when a general attendance is requested, in order that steps may be taken to follow up, with vigor, the advantages gained by the late New York excursion. Gen. Lee, President of the Society, says: "It is only necessary that we display devotion to the enterprise so happily begun to insure perfect success."

On Wednesday three indictments were sent to the grand jury of the Richmond Hustings Court against Col. Joseph Mayo, jr., late State Treasurer. The first indictment is for larceny of $3,000 in State funds, the second for larceny of between fifteen and sixteen thousand dollars, and the third for larceny of $180. If the grand jury return either of these indictments as "true bills," the trial will proceed as soon as possible.

The Confederate memorial monument in the Soldiers' Cemetery, at Liberty, Bedford county, was unveiled on Wednesday, with military and civic ceremonies. Addresses were delivered by Gen. Jubal A. Early, Hon. John Goode, and Gen. D. H. Maury, and a poem, written by Mrs. J. M. Davis, of Texas, was read by Col. W. W. Berry. Gen. Wm. R. Terry was chief marshal.

The telegraph has announced the death of Rev. M. L. Chevers, in the eighty-fourth year of his age. The deceased was chaplain of the garrison at Old Point Comfort for forty years. Those who have been in the habit of visiting Old Point remember him and his unpretending discourses in the chapel there. He always impressed the stranger with his sincerity and his goodness of heart.

The Fredericksburg Herald is delighted to hear that the Conservatives of Loudoun have nominated Wm. Matthew, esq., for the House of Delegates. Armstrong Carter, esq., whose acknowledged ability is known and recognized all over the State.

A mysterious and fatal disease has broken out among the horses of the General Omnibus Company of London. The mouth of the animal becomes white, severe griping follows, the spine and brain become inflamed, a sort of delirium ensues, and the victim falls down and dies. On some of the routes the trips have been reduced more than one-half.

Celluloid is a new chemical combination said to be indurated gun cotton and camphor. It is coming into extensive use for combs, cheap jewelry, harness trimmings, knife handles, and like articles. Its substance is certainly peculiar. A delicately formed finger ring cannot be broken by a heavy blow with a hammer, but when brought in contact with fire it ignites and burns as quickly as a parlor match. A manufactory of celluloid at Newark, last week, exploded, causing loss of life and much damage to property.

The Right Rev. B. B. Smith, of Kentucky, presiding bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States, has written a letter from Hoboken, New Jersey, to Assistant Bishop Dudley, of Kentucky, stating that he thinks it improbable he shall, on account of his old age, be able to resume his duties in Kentucky, and handing over to Bishop Dudley all his ecclesiastical authority in the diocese as far as warranted by the canons of the church.

In view of the prompt dismissal of Admiral Ronciere Le Noury, of the French Navy, from his command, the R. publicans refrained from questioning the Government as to the course it intended to pursue toward the Bonapartists during the sitting of the Permanent Committee yesterday. Ex President Thiers and M. Gambetta are reported to have agreed upon a programme for the action of the Republicans.

Some of these States elect Governors and other State officers, and all of them elect members of the Legislature. Mississippi also elects Congressmen.

The supposed outlaw who was wounded at Pine Hill, Ky., two nights ago, refuses to reveal the name of himself or associates. Nothing was found on his person by which one can identify him, but his personal appearance tallies in every way to the description of the gang who robbed the Huntington (West Virginia) Bank last week.

Little's Living Age, for this week, has been received.

The Brazilian Government is about to publish a decree granting annuities to Bishops and Governors of dioceses, and has resolved to pursue a conciliatory policy on the question of religion. The explanations of the Government of Buenos Ayres on all the matters in dispute between the two countries, with the exception of the Paraguayan boundary question, have been accepted by the Brazilian Government.

In Baltimore, yesterday morning, while Rev. Dr. Leysburn was badly cut and bruised, and Mr. Turnbull escaped with a few slight bruises.

THE VIRGINIA EDITORS.—The members of the Virginia Editorial Association, who have been on an excursion to New York, on Wednesday, upon the invitation of Mayor Wickham, made a visit to the charitable institutions on Blackwell's Island. On a-boarding to the maternity wards in the hospital, Mayor Wickham said that if there was a small boy up there that had been named he should be called Thomas Whitehead. There didn't happen to be any small boy, but as the party were leaving the ward the smiling matron bustled forward with an infant, and said, "It's a girl, gentlemen, but won't you name it?" Mr. Whitehead was equal to the occasion.

"Call it Virginia," he said, "call it Virginia," and his honor added, "Call it Virginia Whitehead," and so the waif was named.

From the hospital the party visited the penitentiary, alms and workhouses, and the asylum for the insane, Commissioner Brennan acting as "guide, philosopher and friend."

On the homeward trip the party assembled in the little cabin of the steamer, and Mr. Whitehead, in a neat speech, thanked the Mayor and commissioner for their hospitality. He should carry back to Old Virginia new ideas and kindly thoughts of the metropolis. Mayor Wickham briefly responded.

[It is a little remarkable that editorial excursionists are always taken to the penitentiaries, insane asylums, and "sick"]

Church Dedication.

[Correspondence of the Alexandria Gazette.]

FALLS CHURCH, Sept. 15.—We had lovely weather to-day for the laying of the cornerstone of the new M. E. Church. The proposed edifice will be one of the neatest in the city—a splendid stone "high basement" with frame superstructure and steeple seventy-five feet high—located admirably on a hillside near the station. The ceremonies commenced at 11 a. m. with devotional exercises and music, after which Mr. W. A. Duncan was introduced and spoke as follows:

MY CHRISTIAN FRIENDS: The objects for which we are to-day assembled is one that must commend itself not only to the community in which we live, to the denomination under whose auspices this building is going up, to the Church of Christ generally, to philanthropic men and women everywhere, but also to the great Architect of the Universe. We should come therefore to the task with grateful and joyous as well as humble hearts—grateful and joyous that we are the honored instruments of God's providence in helping toward the redemption of the human race, and His benign plans for the evangelization and salvation of mankind, and we should be humble from the consciousness of our weakness and inability to come up to the full measure of our desires in this regard. When by the Divine hand Eden was planted and our first parents therein, they needed no temple in which to offer their adoration and praise to the giver of all their joy and happiness, the giver of every good and perfect gift. Sin had not yet darkened the bright picture of paradise—no necessity, then, for the sacrificial altar of atonement, no necessity to crave pardon, no transgression had yet been committed. Then, standing on the lovely face of nature, re, then standing on kneeling on the soft, green carpet spread over the bosom of their mother earth, surrounded by graceful columns, the lofty trees of Eden growing on the banks of its lucid streams and shaded by their lofty canopies. God's glorious eyes, beaming with soft radiant light, with the angry gaze of off-spring, Adam and Eve could safely breathe their morning orisons and whisper forth their vesper songs of praise. But, alas! for their descendants when the serpent invaded their home of purity and fouled with his slimy trail their primal innocence, all was changed. Then angry winds began to blow, fierce lightning to blind, and deafening thunder to appal the frightened universe. And now, amidst heat and biting frost and dripping rain admonish us to provide a shelter in which we may gather together and in safety from the unfriendly elements engage in our devotion.

Holy writ tells us that Noah built an altar to the Lord. This is the first mention we have of a place set apart for worship. And remember that there and then that great promise was made, "I will not again curse the ground any more for man's sake; while the earth remaineth, seed time and harvest and cold and heat and summer and winter and day and night shall not cease." And Abraham pitched his tent, and there he built an altar to the Lord and called upon the name of the Lord; for this good man well knew there was no safety in his tent without the Divine protection. And Jacob and Moses and the prophets built altars and King Solomon built a house for the Lord to dwell in. So that we are not without many illustrious examples in this good work. It is, perhaps, to be regretted that we have not with us the brethren of the mystic tie to conduct with their beautiful and imposing ceremonies the exercises to-day. Were they present they would tell you that this foundation and this cornerstone are of the most durable material known in nature, stable as the mountains, and that the cement which unites the different pieces in one common mass is typical of that holy love and affection which should unite us into one united band, of firm friendship, whose union should never exist, but that noble contemplation or rather emulation, of who can best work or best agree. But beautiful as is the imagery, and true in one sense as it is, we must not be deceived. This solid stone shall melt, the pyramids shall decay, the antediluvian monuments discovered in China shall share the common fate: Old Time, with his relentless scythe, shall sweep everything away, and with his bony fingers crumble them into the silent dust.

"The cloud capped towers, the gorgeous palaces, the solemn temples, the great globe itself; Yea, all which it inherit shall dissolve, And like an unsubstantial pageant faded, Leave not a wreck behind."

But, my Christian friends, the foundation of the church we hope to erect here is not of any such perishable material, the stone which the builders refused we propose to make the head-stone of the corner. St. Mark says, "The stone which the builders refused, I will make the head of the corner." On the foundation, Christ Jesus, we hope to establish here a church, to build up here a society whose influence for good will be felt throughout the whole community, to erect here an altar where all can conveniently and comfortably assemble together, and where we devoutly contemplate the spirit of the Lord may be felt to the comfort and joy of many weary souls, where sinners may be convinced and converted, straying sheep brought in again to the fold of the Good Shepherd, fathers and mothers in Israel cheered and gladdened on their journey, and youths and maidens grow up to become true, polished pillars in the temple of the living God.

Rev. Mr. Beyer and Presiding Elder A. J. Porter delivered stirring addresses.

Business is fair on the whole, and our village is in the van on the march of progress.

"AMITY."

From Front Royal and its Environs.

FRONT ROYAL WARREN COUNTY, VA., Sept. 14.—I have just returned from a visit to Belmont, the residence of M. B. Buck, esq., distant two miles from here, whom we found to be a whole-souled, generous Virginian; and while there we were kindly shown through his extensive vineyards, apple and peach orchards, and wine cellars. I was truly astonished to find the Belmont vineyards and orchards so extensive, for they have grown famous for the purity and excellence of their wines and magnificent fruits.

The Catawba grape, generally tender, grows here as perfect as hot-house fruit. This is the secret of the superior excellence of the wines and brandies made at this place; the perfection of the fruit. His stock is decidedly the best I have tasted. He manufactures, and would pass well for a fine brand of real German Hock. The brandy made from wine is certainly very superior.

I visited, too, "Signal Mountain," (so called from being used during the late war as a "signal station," and one of the highest points of the many spurs of the Blue Ridge), and a more beautiful view mortal eyes never beheld than is seen from the summit. In your front and to your right and left you survey the fertile valleys of Piedmont and Shenandoah, and in your rear the Luray Valley. To this add the smooth and resplendent waters of the north and south branches of the Shenandoah, coursing their way slowly down to a point near this town, where by their junction they form the Shenandoah river proper, and all of this interspersed with neat little country towns and handsome residences to the distance of forty miles on either side, and you may, perhaps, form an imperfect idea of this really grand panorama, made still more attractive by the many unusual historical events enacted here during our late war.

Front Royal has a population of about eight hundred inhabitants—supports two hotels and several large stores. A large number of Washingtonians have been spending the summer months with us; to all appearances they are satisfied with the people and their customs. To all sportsmen who will venture this far (only seventy-five miles) this fall, they will be amply repaid for their trouble, and the woodsman report wild turkeys, deer and pheasants as very numerous.—Cor. Wash. Rep.

DEATH OF REV. GEORGE W. LEYBURN.—We are grieved to learn of the death of Rev. George W. Leyburn, which occurred on the 14th of last August at ancient Thessalonica in Macedonia. He had reached his 68th year. Mr. Leyburn sailed from Norfolk last March together with his son, Rev. Geo. L. Leyburn and family, as missionaries to Greece.—Win. News.

The Winchester Fair is in successful progress. The exhibition of stock, implements, &c., is very fine.

WASHINGTON PRODUCE EXCHANGE.—At a meeting of the Produce Exchange of Washington, last night, the section of the Quotation Committee's report in relation to the flour market being under consideration.

Mr. D. M. Ream gave notice that he would make a motion to reconsider the vote by which the "Wenger" flour was stricken from the report, and would then either move that the same be replaced, or that the section be amended in a manner which he would propose, so that the said flour would not be deprived the quotation of this market, and asked permission to extend his remarks in relation to the motion beyond the time allowed by the constitution.

Mr. Saum moved that fertilizers, and especially guano, be added to the report, and made some brief supplementary remarks, showing that the Washington market affords advantages which must necessarily bring a large trade.

The motion was carried.

Mr. Ream made a motion that the remarks of the committee in relation to the state of trade be inserted in connection with and preceding the class of produce to which they refer.

The motion was received favorably, and passed unanimously.

After further amendments, and before the last section of the report was disposed of, Mr. Ream said that he wished to make a motion to amend the report, and asked if he could extend his remarks beyond the five minute rule.

Mr. Jauncey rose to a point of order, and said that, according to Cushing's Manual, a motion to reconsider should only come from some one voting in the majority; but it was overruled by the Chair, for the reason that it was not known that it would be a motion to reconsider; no one could tell what Mr. Ream's remarks would be.

Several members expressed the belief that they would be in relation to flour.

The Chair stated that if a single objection should be made to Mr. Ream's speaking on the subject of quoting Wenger flour he would not be permitted to occupy the floor.

Mr. Dutton objected.

Mr. Ream desired to explain that he was not particular in regard to quoting Wenger as such. He hoped that some amendment would be made so that the people might know that choice flour is bringing as high a price in Washington as in other cities. He desired to show that there is a market for it here, and in order that quotations might be adjusted to embrace the same, would move that the grade of "choice family" be added to the report and be hereafter quoted at $25.50.

The motion was lost by a close vote.

Under the head of new business, Mr. Ream said, and after resigning he would bring up a very important matter, which would startle the Exchange. He then drew from his pocket a newspaper, and said he desired to call the attention of the Exchange to a card of Biedeler & Barrett in a London county paper, which they claim the credit of having been mainly instrumental in causing the Exchange to reduce commission rates, whereas the truth is that no such reduction was made at the meeting of August 5, referred to in said publication, except on calves, and that therefore this publication was a palpable fraud, and intended to deceive and mislead the London county public; and while he regretted that the gentlemen were not present to answer for themselves, he would ask the Exchange to take such action as would insure to them a fair and impartial hearing, to the end that justice be done in the premises.

Mr. Hoge said the gentlemen were out of town on a pleasure trip, and moved that the matter be postponed.

The chairman said it was a subject the Exchange should act on at once.

On motion of Mr. Ream, a committee was appointed to investigate the matter, and Messrs. Ream, Saum and Hoge were appointed such committee.
